January 24, 2014

This week, Getty Publications launched a Virtual Library [1] that provides free access to 250 of its backlist titles, including Getty collection catalogues, exhibition catalogues, journals, and publications on conservation of cultural heritage. Virtual Library books are the newest part of the Getty's Open Content Program [2], joining the thousands of open-access images already available, and are available for online reading or PDF download. Read more in a blog post [3] by Getty president James Cuno.
