First, a discussion of transcribing versus recording:

Transcription:

RDA's emphasis on transcription is consistent with the International Cataloging Principles' [3] principle of representation, that is: represent the resource the way it represents itself. This is a shift away from AACR2's rules on abbreviations, capitalization, punctuation, numerals, and symbols, and on the correction of data that is known to be incorrect, such as typos. RDA favors generally not altering what is on the resource when transcribing information for certain elements.

Transcribed information = "Take what you see" and "accept what you get."

General guidelines in 1.7.1 (and appendices A (capitalization) and B (abbreviations) address transcription of what is on the resource: punctuation, abbreviations, inaccuracies, symbols, initials, numbering. In short, generally follow what is on source. However, 1.7.1 includes alternatives that allow for adjusting data following in-house guidelines or a preferred style manual.

Transcribed elements are "recorded" exactly as they appear on the resource, except when specific instructions say otherwise. In fact, RDA's instructions in Chapter 2, on "recording" the attributes of manifestations and items, use the verb "record."

RDA 1.4 contains a list of elements to be transcribed from the resource in the found language and script:

Element

Title: title and parallel title proper, other title and parallel other title information, variant title

Statement and parallel statement of responsibility relating to title proper

Edition: designation and parallel designation, statement and parallel statement of responsibility, designation and parallel designation, revision

Production: place and parallel place, name and parallel name, and date

Publication: place and parallel place, name and parallel name, and date

Distribution: place and parallel place, name and parallel name, and date

Manufacturer: place and parallel place, name and parallel name, and date

Series statement: Series and subseries: title proper and parallel title proper, other title and parallel other title information, statement and parallel statement

When information for any of these elements does not appear on the resource and is taken from a source outside the resource, indicate it in a note or enclose the information in square brackets (see 2.2.4 [4]).

Recording:

For those elements that recorded, the found information may be adjusted or taken from another source. The information is taken on the source, but not necessarily exactly as it appears on the source (for example, the hyphens in an ISBN are omitted).

For non-transcribed elements:

- ° record them in the language and script preferred by the agency creating the data (at LC, this is English);
- ° when adding information within an element, record it in the language and script of the element to which it is being added;
- ° when supplying an entire element, generally supply it in English.

(1.7.1) These are guidelines on general guidelines on capitalization, punctuation, symbols, abbreviations, etc., when transcribing an element as it appears on the source of information.

Alternative 1: If the agency creating the data has established in-house guidelines for capitalization, punctuation, numerals, symbols, abbreviations, etc., or has designated a published style manual, etc., use those guidelines or that style manual in place of the instructions given under 1.7.2-1.7.9 and in the appendices.

LC practice/PCC practice for Alternative 1:

For capitalization of transcribed elements, catalogers are encouraged (but not required) to follow Appendix A;
◦ it is permitted to "take what you see" on the resource.

For punctuation, numerals, symbols, abbreviations, etc., follow the guidelines in 1.7.3-1.7.9 and in the appendices.

◦ If supplying information in brackets or providing a romanized form, apply cataloger's judgment to follow the appropriate appendix or not.

Alternative 2: If a description created by another agency is used or if data are derived from a digital source of information using an automated scanning, copying, or downloading process, accept the data without modification.

LC practice for Alternative 2: Follow appropriate LC copy cataloging guidelines with respect to accepting and modifying data from other agencies:

- Generally accept data derived from digital sources;
- Make any adjustments to the supplied information judged appropriate.

PCC practice for Alternative 2:

PCC practice for Alternative (2nd): Generally accept data derived from digital sources;

- Make any adjustments to the supplied information judged appropriate.

Note: Catalogers using data derived from a digital source are permitted (though not required) to make the capitalization conform to Appendix A.

Best practices for music cataloging [8]: Follow LC-PCC PS, including for both alternatives. That is, for each separate element, either "take what you see" from the resource or apply Appendix A, per local policy and/or cataloger's judgment.

If applying Appendix A, or when in doubt, leave a space between a caption (e.g., "op.") and an opus or thematic index number.

(1.7.2) Capitalization

See also Capitalization of foreign terms based on RDA Appendix A [9]

Apply the instructions on capitalization given in appendix A:

Guidelines on capitalization for English and a selected number of other languages that are to be applied when transcribing or recording specified elements.

◦ Unless there are specific guidelines under guidelines below, capitalize words according to the guidelines for the language involved.

- » Record any words not covered by the guidelines in this appendix in lower case.

Alternative: When recording the attributes of a manifestation or item, if the agency creating the data has established in-house guidelines on capitalization, or has designated a published style manual, etc., as its preferred guide, use those guidelines or that style manual in place of the instructions given in this appendix.

LC practice for Alternative: For capitalization of transcribed elements, either "take what you see" on the resource or follow this appendix.

◦ For other elements, follow this appendix. If supplying information in brackets or providing a romanized form, apply cataloger's judgment to follow this appendix or not.

◦ (A.2) Names of persons, families, corporate bodies, and places

- » In general, capitalize the first word of each name.
- » Capitalize other words applying the guidelines applicable to the language involved.
- » For names with unusual capitalization, follow the capitalization of the commonly known form.
- » Capitalize in names of persons:
 - a word, or the substantive words in a phrase characterizing a person and used as a name
 - a quoted title within a personal name
 - titles and other terms treated as an integral part of the name of a person

- the first word and any proper names in other designations associated with a person, in terms indicating field of activity and in terms indicating occupation or profession
- » Initialisms and acronyms of the letters of an initialism or acronym used by a corporate body
 - Follow the the capitalization in the predominant usage of the body.
- » Capitalize other terms associated with names of families and corporate bodies:
 - the first word of a term indicating type of family
 - the first word of a designation associated with a corporate body
 - other words in the term or designation applying the guidelines applicable to the language involved.
- ° (A.3) Titles of works
 - » Capitalize the title of a work as instructed under A.4.
 - » Other terms associated with titles of works, capitalize:
 - the first word of each term.
 - other words in the term applying the guidelines applicable to the language involved.
 - Exceptions:
 - Music: Do not capitalize words or abbreviations indicating medium of performance (6.15 [10]) or numeric designation of a musical work (6.16 [11]), unless the word is, or the abbreviation stands for, a proper name.
 - For thematic index numbers (6.16.1.3.3 [12]), follow the capitalization practice used in the thematic index.
 - Series: Do not capitalize words or abbreviations indicating numbering of a part (24.6) unless the word or abbreviation is capitalized in the language concerned.
- ° (A.4) Titles of manifestations
 - Capitalize the first word or the abbreviation of the first word in a title and in a title of a part, section, or supplement.
 - Capitalize other words within titles applying the guidelines applicable to the language involved.
 - Exceptions:
 - » Other title information: Do not capitalize the first word or the abbreviation of the first word in other title information (2.3.4 [13]) unless the word or abbreviation is listed under A.10-A.55 or in appendix B as one that should be capitalized.
 - » Unusual capitalization: Follow the capitalization of the title as found on the source of information.
 - Do not capitalize the first word of a title if it is preceded by punctuation indicating that the beginning of the phrase from which the title was derived has been omitted.
- ° (A.5) Edition statement
 - » Capitalize:
 - the first word or abbreviation of the first word in a designation of edition (2.5.2 [14]).
 - other words in an edition statement applying the guidelines applicable to the language involved.
- ° (A.7) Numbering within series and subseries
 - » Do not capitalize a term that is part of the numbering within a series (2.12.9) or subseries (2.12.17) unless the guidelines given applicable to the language involved require capitalization.
 - » Capitalize other words and alphabetic devices according to the usage on the resource.
- ° (A.8) Notes
 - » Capitalize the first word or abbreviation of a word in a note (2.20, 3.22, 5.9, 8.13, 24.8, and 29.7).
 - » If a note consists of more than one sentence, capitalize the first word of each subsequent sentence.
 - » Capitalize a title as instructed under A.4.
 - » Capitalize other words as applicable to the language involved.
- ° (A.10) English language
 - » Where a guideline prescribes the capitalization of the name of a person, corporate body, or place, or of a title of nobility, term of honour, appellation, epithet, etc., understand this to mean that each separate word or initial is to be capitalized excepting articles, prepositions, and conjunctions.
 - » However, in a place name, capitalize an article that forms an accepted part of the name according to gazetteers.
 - » Capitalize a plural generic term when it precedes the distinctive nouns in two or more proper names.
 - » Do not capitalize the generic term when it follows the nouns.

each subsequent statement of responsibility: semicolon (;)

(D.1.2.5) Publication, production, distribution, etc., area

Precede the: second or subsequent place of production, publication, distribution, manufacturer

With: semicolon (;)

name of producer, publisher, distributor, manufacturer: colon (:)

date of production, publication, distribution, manufacturer: comma

(D.1.2.6) Physical description area

Precede: other physical details (i.e., other than extent or dimensions)

With: colon (:)

dimensions: semicolon (;)

each statement of accompanying material: plus sign (+)

Enclose: extent, other physical details, and dimensions of accompanying material

With: parentheses

(D.1.2.7) Series description area

Precede: each parallel title

With: equals sign (=)

other title information: colon (:)

the first statement of responsibility: diagonal slash (/)

each subsequent statement of responsibility: semicolon (;)

the ISSN of a series or sub-series: comma

the numbering within a series or sub-series or multipart monographic resource: semicolon (;)

(1.7.4) Diacritical marks

Transcribe diacritical marks such as accents as they appear on the source of information.

Add diacritical marks that are not present on the source of information in accordance with standard usage for the language of the data.

(1.7.5) Symbols

Transcribe diacritical marks such as accents as they appear on the source of information.

◦ Make an explanatory note if necessary (see 2.20).

Ignore typographical devices that are used as separators, etc.

LC practice/PCC practice: The objective in treating signs and symbols not represented in the character set is to render or convey the intention without undue time and effort and with a minimum of interpolation, using one of the techniques described in this section. Note that a minimum of interpolation is wanted because those searching the machine catalog cannot very often be expected to "second-guess" the cataloger in this respect, i.e., users will normally formulate search queries that necessarily do not take interpolations into account. As judged appropriate, use notes to explain and use access points to provide additional access; the examples below are illustrative, not prescriptive.

Best practices for music cataloging [8]: Follow LC-PCC PS.

1. If the symbol is judged not to be an integral or essential part of the title, do not intervene in the transcription.

◦ Instead, omit the symbol; explain its omission in a note if it is judged worth mentioning.

2. Use existing characters when this can be done without serious distortion or loss of intelligibility.

3. Use the double underscore convention (see the section on Special Letters, Diacritical Marks, and Punctuation Marks in Policy Statement 1.4.)

4. Substitute in the language of the context the word, phrase, etc., that is the obvious spoken/written equivalent (if unknown in the language of the context, use English); bracket the interpolated equivalent. If the element in the source is not preceded or followed by a space, in general precede or follow the bracketed interpolation by a space unless a space would create an unintended result for searching.

Example:

2013560337

245 10 8 --> [infinity]

500 In title, "[infinity]" appears as the infinity symbol.

Exception 1: Do not transcribe symbols that indicate birth (e.g., an asterisk) or death (e.g., a dagger) even if such characters are in the character set.

◦ Do not use a mark of omission;

◦ instead, explain the omission in a note and provide a variant title with an interpolated word or phrase if it seems useful.

Exception 2: Ignore symbols indicating trademark (registered or otherwise), patent, etc.

◦ These include:

Transcription (RDA 1.7)

Published on Yale University Library (<https://web.library.yale.edu>)

- a superscript or subscript "R" enclosed in a circle (®) (ignore although included in the character set)
- the superscript or subscript letters "TM" (™).
- ° Explain their presence in a note if considered important. Ignore such symbols also when they appear with elements used in access points.

5. If the spoken/written equivalent is not obvious, give an explanation or a description in the language of the context (if unknown in the language of the context, use English).

6. If a title consists solely of a sign or symbol or one or more marks of punctuation, provide an equivalent in all cases, even if the particular symbol is itself in the character set.

(1.7.6) Spacing of initials and acronyms

If separate letters or initials appear on the source of information without full stops between them, transcribe the letters without spaces between them, regardless of spacing on the source.

If such letters or initials have full stops between them, omit any internal spaces.

(1.7.7) Letters or words intended to be read more than once

If a letter or word appears only once but the design of the source of information makes it clear that it is intended to be read more than once, repeat the letter or word.

(1.7.8) Abbreviations

Apply the instructions on the use of abbreviations in transcribed elements given in appendix B.4:

- ° For transcribed elements, use only those abbreviations found in the sources of information for the element.
- ° If supplying all or part of a transcribed element, generally do not abbreviate words.

The abbreviations allowed in appendix B4 that are encountered frequently in music are: alto ²Do not use when recording the extent of notated music.

(1.7.9) Inaccuracies

When instructed to transcribe an element as it appears on the source of information, transcribe an inaccuracy or a misspelled word as it appears on the source, except where instructed otherwise.

Make a note correcting the inaccuracy if it is considered to be important for identification or access (see 2.20).

If the inaccuracy appears in a title, record a corrected form of the title as a variant title (2.3.6 [17]) if it is considered to be important for identification or access.
