Staff name headings search vs staff name/title headings search | Headings list vs title index

Staff name headings search vs staff name/title headings search

The staff name headings search retrieves a headings list. The highlighted entry in the headings list includes the authority record for the personal name and indicates the number of bibliographic records with that name heading:

Voyager search: Staff name headings search
Search key: magini francesco

Clicking on the highlighted index entry will retrieve a titles index:

The staff name/title headings search also retrieves a headings list, in which there is no entry for the personal name only; only name/title entries:

You are given the option of selecting "one or more authority records," although, in most cases there will be only one authority record:

To view the authority record, click on "OK" or on the highlighted entry.

The authority record will display:

To return to the headings list, click on the "Headings" button on the menu bar:

Further down in the headings list, you will find this authorized heading. It should have an authority record and four bibliographic records associated with it:

To get to the title index for the four bibliographic records, either click on the "OK" button or on the highlighted entry.

Titles index

- The first column indicates whether it is a reference, an authorized heading authority records, or, when the space is blank, a heading that has no authority record.
- The second column indicates how many bibliographic records include that heading.
  - If it is a reference, there should always be no ("0") bibliographic records with that heading.
  - If it is an authorized heading, there will usually be, but not always, at least one bibliographic record associated with it.
  - If it is neither a reference or an authorized heading, there will be at least one bibliographic record with that heading.
- The third column includes the heading itself.
- The fourth column indicates the heading type. In this case, they are all "personal name" headings.
- The titles index has four columns.
  - The first column includes the heading found in the bibliographic record.
  - The second column indicates the main entry in the bibliographic record.

The titles index display:

To retrieve any of the four bibliographic records, either double click on the entry or, if it is already highlighted, click the "OK" button.

Once the bibliographic record is displayed:
To return to the titles index, click on the "Titles" button on the menu bar.
To return to the headings list, click on the "Headings" button on the menu bar.

- It may or may not be the same name found in the heading in the first column.
- In the case of title main entry, this space is blank.
    - The third column gives the title found in the 245.
    - The fourth column indicates the imprint.
