Tables

HTML tables `<table>` should be used sparingly, and only for information that truly belongs in a table. Tables should not be used just for layout.

Also, you should not be hand-coding very large tables, tables that need to be updated regularly, or tables that re-create data that is stored elsewhere. If you find yourself spending a lot of time keeping tables up-to-date, or you need advanced functionality (like the ability to sort by column) you should contact library IT about creating a more sustainable solution.

Currently, tables have the default YaleSites styling, and all tags unique to tables are supported:

caption	thead	tbody	tr 2	tfoot
	th 1	th 2	td 1	td 2
	td 1	td 2	td 1	td 2
	td 1	td 2	td 1	td 2
