University of San Diego Curation Pilots: Planning for the Future

Presenter: David Minor, Director of Digital Preservation Initiatives, UCSD Library

Thursday, August 15, 9:30–11:00
CSSSI 24 Hour Space

David will give an overview of UCSD's current initiatives in digital curation and preservation and discuss future plans for providing service in the rapidly changing world of data-intensive research. Everyone is welcome to attend. Coffee will be provided, and there will be plenty of time for questions and discussion.

David Minor works at the University of California, San Diego (UCSD), where he is the Director of Digital Preservation Initiatives and Interim Head of the Research Data Curation Program at the UCSD Library. In these roles he helps define current and future work needed for the preservation of vital resources. He is also the program manager of Chronopolis, a national-scale digital preservation network. In addition to his digital preservation duties, he is lead for the Curation Services Program in the Research Cyberinfrastructure Initiative on the UCSD campus.

External link: http://www.library.yale.edu/librarynews/2013/08/university_of_san_diego_curati.h... [1]

Source URL:https://web.library.yale.edu/news/2013/08/university-san-diego-curation-pilots-planning-future

Links
[1] http://www.library.yale.edu/librarynews/2013/08/university_of_san_diego_curati.html