
Digitizing World Christianity at the Yale Divinity School Library

The Divinity Library is engaged in four grant-funded projects to digitize portions of its Day Missions Collection. The Day Missions Collection, founded by Yale professor George Edward Day in 1891, consists of books, periodicals, pamphlets, reports, photographs, and archival collections that document the missionary movement and world Christianity. Largest of the current initiatives is an NEH-funded effort to digitize 350,000 pages of annual reports and periodicals from the collection. This project, which continues work begun in 2010 with Arcadia funds, is among the collections currently being ingested via Ladybird into the new Yale University Library Digital Collections repository.

Read more at: <http://guides.library.yale.edu/content.php?pid=344338&sid=3183607#16261489> [1]

External link: http://www.library.yale.edu/librarynews/2013/11/digitizing_world_christianity.ht... [2]

Source URL: <https://web.library.yale.edu/news/2013/11/digitizing-world-christianity-yale-divinity-school-library>

Links

[1] <http://guides.library.yale.edu/content.php?pid=344338&sid=3183607#16261489> [2]

http://www.library.yale.edu/librarynews/2013/11/digitizing_world_christianity.html