

Borrow Direct service expands to include Johns Hopkins Libraries

Beginning Wednesday, July 2, Borrow Direct users will see holdings from the Johns Hopkins Libraries, at Johns Hopkins University (JHU), become the newest member of the Borrow Direct consortium. The libraries at JHU hold more than 3.7 million books and include the Milton S. Eisenhower Library, which is the principal research library for the university. Additional JHU libraries include the Welch Medical Library, the School of Advanced International Studies Library, and the Friedman Music Library.

With the addition of JHU, Borrow Direct now has eleven member libraries, including Brown, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, University of Pennsylvania, Princeton, MIT, University of Chicago, and Yale. For information about Borrow Direct go to: <http://guides.library.yale.edu/getit> [1]. Any questions can be directed to: kendall.crilly@yale.edu [2]

External link: http://www.library.yale.edu/librarynews/2014/06/borrow_direct_service_expands.ht... [3]

Source

URL: <https://web.library.yale.edu/news/2014/06/borrow-direct-service-expands-include-johns-hopkins-libraries>

Links

[1] <http://guides.library.yale.edu/getit> [2] http://www.library.yale.edu/librarynews/2014/06/borrow_direct_service_expands.html