

For Your Research and Theirs: What you need to know about working with human subjects

Monday, August 18th at 2:00 pm SML International Room Librarians work with human subjects on a daily basis as they try and understand the needs of our communities. They also field questions from faculty about how they should proceed with research that involves human subjects. Please join us for a SCOPA forum presented by Jean Larson, the Education & Community Outreach Manager for the Human Research Protection Program, and Sarah Ryan, the Empirical Research Librarian at the Law School and veteran of the IRB process at multiple institutions, that will cover the basics of working with human subjects.

External link: http://www.library.yale.edu/librarynews/2014/08/for_your_research_and_theirs_w.h... [1]

Source

URL:<https://web.library.yale.edu/news/2014/08/your-research-and-theirs-what-you-need-know-about-working-human?page=2>

Links

[1] http://www.library.yale.edu/librarynews/2014/08/for_your_research_and_theirs_w.html