

Student Research at Yale University Library

September 21, 2016

This annual exhibit opening Monday, October 3 in the Sterling Memorial Library Exhibits Corridor, highlights four Yale students' exceptional research at the Yale University Library. The subjects represented are as diverse as the Yale Library collections and convey a combination of both complete and ongoing research. Students share key library resources important to their research ranging from online databases to favorite study spaces. The curators are: María de las Mercedes Martínez-Milantchí '16, Trumbull College, Archaeological Studies; Camille Owens, Graduate Student, Department of African American Studies; Helen Price '18, Davenport College; Rebecca Straub, Graduate Student, Department of the History of Art.

All are welcome to visit!

Source URL: <https://web.library.yale.edu/news/2016/09/student-research-yale-university-library>